

AROUND THE STUDIOS

Nic Kirkman {she is the one in the polka dot skirt} is the tutor on a Tuesday morning in the smaller studio teaching all mediums and all ages. A very passionate artist who likes nothing better than helping her students reach their goal in the artistic world.

Nic endeavours to bring out the unique style of each artist and not to make them clones of her own style. Her students are very happy with the journey that they are on and the class is a very happy one.

Nic's own work is of the modern contemporary lovely colourful art. My words this time, because I find it happy refreshing and thoughtful.

On this particular day I saw pastel, watercolour, oils and acrylics being transformed into lovely works of art by both male and female students.

According to Nic, and I quote her “Some of the most powerful things about art are how it helps us remember and explore feelings, and to reconnect with others.” I think that is very well said, and reading those words might help students understand a bit more what they are actually feeling

Since arriving in Australia Nic has gone on to become a much appreciated teacher. And Nic also teaches at the Dromana Community House.

You can see more of her work at NicKirkman.com or call the numbers in the classes section.

As you can see by the photos some of Nic students are turning out really turning out good work and will no doubt end up in the PAS Spring Art Show.

Anyone who wants to take the journey with Nic why not call her and join the happy group you can only get better.

Looking around this studio you can see the easy way the students take to their art classes, with all easels and stools available to use you are able to make great art and if you start to feel stressed then just go into the kitchen and make a coffee, any strength. You just need to try.
